Since the globe started rotating, so born was I,
Living across ages long I'm blessed never to die;
For me the world knew itself, connected and formed about,
Infinite souls I bound along and will continue without any doubt.
In various forms appear do I differing from tongue to tongue,
From place to place, from time to time, eternally I am sung;
Committed I am to the voices, pages and pens,
The world runs because of me thus my job never ends!
Once a baby borns clung am I to his life,
Live with I many a lives, my soul's river never falls dry;
Often rough am I, often I'm very smooth,
Sometimes veiled I am while sometimes I stand raw and nude:
Oracles can sing because of me, for me the commoners can shout,
Holding my hand lies are told while truths often are blurred out.
In my name many a times blood spilled and lot a lives were lost,
Yet voices still hold me, my relation with them is neverendingly long;
Often the swords clashed, often the throats were strangled,
Yet killing me is never possible, without me the world will fall apart detangled;
Prized am I over the lives for me people are even ready to die,
Running the civilizations all along, I the language will reign along being their pride!

What language does the infant cry in,
Witnessing the first beam of light?
Is it a cry of hope or of returning desire? Who knows!

What language does a human soul speak,
Reuniting with love a decade later?
Is it English or the unspoken words of longing eyes?
What language do the clouds speak,
When its a victory of monsoon?
Is it the triumph of thunder or the tears of rain?
What language does the Almighty choose,
To shower His blessings on Man?
Is it through miracles or the gift of patience?

What language did the Nightingale sing in,
To soothe the soul of Keats?
Was it French or Spanish? Who knows!
Do they all imbibe each other's Mother Language?
Or, is it the invisible ink that writes the inaudible language of love?
The language that entangles them,
Transforming the barrier into admittance!
